There is so much to be said about the student intifada movement that I unfortunately cannot fit in this Zine, please take time to do your own research. Here are some informative articles:

https://www.acaciamag.com/issue-02/the-student-intifada https://atmos.earth/how-student-protest-encampments-can-help-build-new-futures/https://www.columbiaspectator.com/main/2024/05/12/in-focus-when-hamilton-hall-became-hinds-hall/https://www.bestcolleges.com/research/student-protests-pro-palestinian-encampments/

https://hammerandhope.org/article/campus-protests-students-gaza

SANCTIONS

Sanctions in international relations are the measures taken by States to uphold their obligations under international law by acting to bring to an end... of serious breaches of the basic principles if international law. Sanctions target the responsible State with the aim of compelling it to abide by international law by ceasing its violations and making reperations... The movement workts to build power fromthe grassroots to the grasstops to pressure States, official institutions such as local goverments, and international organizations, to end their complicity in Israel's systematic atrocity crimes and human rights violations.